MARCH 2024

Advocating

Cecilie gave a talk at Molde in Norway for International Women's Day. Norway has lots to do, to catch up with removing victim blaming and this was one of the first times there has been an invite to talk about her journey and the shortcomings of organisations. Sharing our experiences and making noise in the right places is paramount to learning and change. We won't be remembered for being quiet and that's ok!

Double Verify helps business and brands to safeguard reputations across devices and emerging channels. It helps identify new fraud schemes and offers solutions. Cecilie gave a talk to some of their departments this month.

Welcome!

Welcome to the March newsletter. Hope you all had a great March. As always, it's been a very busy time here and can't believe how quickly the time is passing this year!

Please remember to read overleaf, so that you can check out any new meetings on offer.

Podcasts

Strise, with it's The Laundry Podcast helps to connect financial crime to the real world. I joined them with Simon Miller from Stop Scams UK, to discuss what can be done to improve the journey for victims through better collaboration as well as other things!

What have we been up to in March?

Cecilie and I were nominated for an award at the end of last month for 'Most Inspiring Women in Cyer'. We didn't win but we were up against some ladies who work in huge companies, stopping cyber threat. We're more victim centric here but is was an honour to be nominated!

WORKING TOGETHER TO STOP SCAMS

Stop Scams UK is an industry-led collaboration of responsible businesses from across the banking, telecoms and technology sectors who have come together to help stop scams at source. We exist to enable and facilitate the development of technical solutions that will help prevent the harm and loss caused by scams.

Almost all scams will touch on two or more of the banking, technology and telecoms sectors. The work of Stop Scams UK in bringing business from across these three key sectors together is crucial in creating the holistic, systemic solutions necessary to keep all of us safe.

Would you like?

I am thinking of hosting a zoom meeting where you can learn how to be nosy on profiles to check to see where clues are hidden when the profiles are fake.

If you might like to join a meeting for this, please email and let me know and I will set a date!

Take care and stay safe,
Anna and Cecilie
